

You're Special

- A Got a minute?
- B Sure. What's up?
- A I have to tell you a secret.
- B Okay.
- A I'm invisible.
- B What?
- A I said I'm invisible.
- B No, you're not. I'm looking right at you.
- A But you're the only one who can see me.
- B Stop talking weird.
- A You can see me because you have super powers.
- B Come on. Cut it out.
- A I'm serious. It's because you're special.
- B That's funny.
- A It is?
- B It is. You sound like my mom.
- A I do?
- B You do. You know what my mom always says?
- A No. I can't read minds. I don't have that power.
- B She says, "You're special and unique – just like everyone else!"

- A Wow! That's ... brilliant!
- B Yeah. My mom's super smart.
- A Is she invisible too?
- B No. I see her every day.
- A You do?
- B I do.
- A See? That's because you're special.
