

Volunteer Work

- A Where's your dad going? Is he working today?
- B He's off from his job, but he's going to his volunteer job now.
- A Volunteer? Really?
- B I'm really proud of him. He volunteers every weekend.
- A My dad says he won't do anything unless he gets paid.
- B I think a lot of people probably feel that way.
- A Yeah. He says there's only twenty-four hours in a day.
- B That's the same thing my dad says! But he says it a little differently ...
- A How does he say it?
- B My father says we all have the same number of hours. The average millionaire has the same twenty-four hours as the average homeless guy.
- A So?
- B What's important is how you use them.
- A I get it. But millionaires can't be millionaires if they're always working for free.
- B No, but they can donate a little time every week. They can volunteer for their favorite charities. Almost like spending time on a hobby.
- A Yeah, I guess.
- B Does your dad watch sports on the weekend?

- A Sure. All day long.
- B See? He can use some of that couch time for volunteering.
- A I kinda don't think so.
- B I bet his favorite sports stars do charity and volunteer work.
- A That's different.
- B Yeah, it's different. They're all millionaires.